TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1857.

EXHIBITION OF THE FEMALE HIGH SCHOOL.-Mozart Hall, famous as it has been for large gatherings of beauty, intellect, and fashion, never held within its spacious walls an audience of such magnitude and such prepossessing appearance as that collected last night. The occasion was the exhibition of the pupils of the Female High School at the close of the scholastic year. Some fifty young ladies tastefully attired, their faces beaming with intelligence and happiness, appeared upon the stage, accompanied by their accomplished teachers.

Original essays of the choicest diction, finest con-ion, and true thought were read by the following onng ladies: Self-Improvement, by Miss Emma Mitchell; The Pulpit, the Press, and the School-room, by Miss Anna Walton; True Courtesy, by Miss Christie Morris; Force of Circumstances, by Miss Fannie Thomas; The Comet, by Miss Euroda Lncas; Literature, by Miss Leora Bettison; Modern Delusions, by Miss Susan Yager.

The original essays, on subjects selected by themselves, were by scholars who have attained the highest rank in the first class. The Salutatory was by Miss Kate Bettison, the second scholar; and the Valedictory by Miss Sallie Balinforth, the first scholar in the school.

The music was delightful, and the recitations of choice extracts from different authors displayed the most thorough cultivation in the difficult art of elo-

At the close of the exercises, Prof. Holyoke, the principal, delivered a very appropriate address upon the Public Schools of the city, which was, as it deserved to be, well received by the large assemblage.

INCREASED MAIL FACILITIES .- On Thursday the Postmaster General ordered an important improvement in the mail service between this city and Nashville, Tenn., increasing the facilities and accelerating the schedule, to insure a connection at Nashville with the Southern and Southwestern mails (going) thence by railroad, and saving twenty-four hours in the through matter for all points south and southwest of Nas, ille.

We are glad that the new Postmaster General, ex-Governor A. V. Brown, is manifesting some little interest in the wants of this section. But he would consult the public interests much more if he were to make arrangements not only for the expedition, but the certain and punctual transportation of the great Eastern mails to this point. We are most shamefully served by the present mail service. The appointment of energetic and faithful route agents would obviate all difficulties.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE .- A Mr. Slade, a printer and his wife, who were stopping at the Tennessee House, Memphis, attempted to put an end to their lives on Wednesday last by swallowing laudanum Pecuniary embarrassment and a diseased intellect, produced by intemperance, are supposed to have been the cause of this rash move. Mr. Slade was married some three months since in Missouri, against the wishes and remonstrances of his wife's relatives. When questioned as to whether she wanted to die. his wife replied that if he died she also wanted to die. Medical aid was procured in time to save their lives, and yesterday evening they were recovering.

GRAYSON SPRINGS .- This delightful watering place is now open for the reception of visiters, and the present season promises to be one of the most interesting ever had even in Grayson. A splendid band of musicians has been engaged and will arrive at the Springs on the 26th inst.

We can assume all who may wish to enjoy a delightful period of recreation and relaxtion this summer, that they will find no more agreeable place than Grayson. Mr. Clarkson is prepared with the finest accommodations. The New York mail has failed for four days in succession—a perplexing fact, consequent, we have no doubt, upon the interruptions to trains on the Erie railroads by heavy floods on that route,

Our readers will here recognize the hand of a ew peetess in our columns. What do they think of her? [For the Louisville Jonrnal.] CARL EBERT. BYIM. A. DENISON. The sunshine climbed o'er hill and wood To where Saint Alstein's chapel stood. Quaint were its towers and pointed door, A lawn, oak-bordered, spread before.

From distant mounds gray crosses sprung, With fresh and withered gariands hung. There was the chapel burying-ground, Hewn from the rocks that clasped it round

Dim in the sacred shade it stood, A black-gowned friar with curling hair Sat thoughtfui in the chancel chair.

He was not old-his life's rich wine Held yet no lees-the eye's clear shine. The veins, that from the temples spread In leaves of dark but giowing red The thick curl's gloss, as wet with rain,

The teeth, white, glistening, pearled like grain, Told that fresh mountainair and dew Had made him strong as mountain yew. Why sat he there, that friar, to shrive? A carol sounded soft and clear, Its lute-like echo reached his ear;

A smile, a flush, a hurried tread, The brow mere veiled, low bent the head; The curtain drawn-he waits within,

Rude the confessional as free Pine, seamed and rough, for foot or knee; A window, scarce a hand-breadth, gave Priestcraft small space through which to save. Sweet village Eltha, gala-dressed, Red cheeked, bright lipped, and golden tressed!

Round berry-jeweis hanging low O'er neck and robe that rivaled snow, With modest cap and ribbon bine, And eyes of heaven's softest hue,

Came coyly to the chapei door And lightly trod the sacred floor. So, gliding timid by the wall,

"My daughter," said the friar young, And stammering grew his holy tongue. Whileshelow kneeling bowed her head, And listened with a modest dread: "Tell thy most secret thoughts to me-My ear, my heart their shroud shall be."

"Father," the trembling lips essayed, "My mother bade me be afraid "Of sin, hut not ashamed to tell That I have done-if ill or weli-"Oh, holy father!"——"Speak, my child? Christ help thee!" said the friar mild. "Father, I fear me I have erred.

"When I would teil my beads, he'll sing, And so my pious thoughts take wing. "I watch him hourly, and his care Grows dearer than my love for prayer."

This said, she sighed. Low spoke the friar: "Child, raise thine aspirations higher; "This hour keep nothing back, tell all "Sweet maid"_she started_"nay, my child, Why by the mocking-bird beguiled! "Thy subtlest reasons now unseal. Thy secret, sacred thoughts reveal. "Some time, my danghter, thou may'st know Wherefore thy priest doth shrive thee so.

"Come, daughter, let thy v ice be heard-"I love it"—lower bowed the head—"Becanse it was a gift," she said.

And blushes deep and hot and fast Brow, cheek, and bosom overcast. "From whom?" The friar trembied now, Forgetting holy cowl and vow.

A youth, whom on my way to mass I met at Alstein's mountain pass; "A fair-hred youth—he smiled and spoke And drew from 'neath his broidered cloak-' "A broidered cloak!" the friar cried. "Methinks this youth hath means and pride:

"Speak on"-and, mnttering low, his face White as the aitar's costly lace His hand tight clenched, his gleaming teeth Giving harsh entrance to his breath.

The friar listened coid and faint-Again with chilling voice he spoke: "What drew he from his broidered cloak?"

What change electric thrilled the friar! His cheek grew bright, his eye glowed fire; His hand unclosed its frantic clasp, Fell the crushed tonic from his grasp And, as the sun flashed fast and far

On picture and candelabra, On golden crucifix that stood High on the pulpit's carvéd wood, Marched with its red beams where it willed, Till choir and seats and aisies were filled. He threw the gloom from all his frame, And thrilled to hear his own rude name Then bending low, all wild with bliss,

Longing the innocent lips to kiss. "Hast thou no more," he asked, "to tell But that then joyest the bird too well? "And doth this Carl disturb thy mind. hen thou'rt to pions thoughts inclined?"

Sweet downcast look! the lashes prest On pearly cheek, the heaving breast The fingers pushing fast and free The brown beads of her rosary, The bending brow still lower bent, Till with the golden locks it blent,

The tronbled mien, the lips apart Dyed with the crimson of the heart, Unconscions she what power to bless Sprang from that low, half-whispered "yes." The hlessing spoken, went the maid

Softly as one ashamed, afraid. Flowers and fragrauce, birds and song Her guileless footsteps wiled along. The friar nurobed, laid priestcraft by That he his own sweet craft might try. For 'twas Carl Ebert thus had heard The story of the mocking-bird.

So followed he the monntain way And won a bride that summer's day.

COMMENCEMENT OF TRANSYLVANIA UNIVERSITY -Address of Gov. Morehead .- Lexington is to witness, during the present week, a gala to which she has been accustomed for many years past. We refer to the annual commencement of that venerable institution of learning-Transylvania University. For a long while that was the leading shool of arts and sciences in our State. Its origin dates back to the very organization of government in Kentucky, and in its classic shades many of the leading statesmen and divines of the nation received their in-

Transylvania is now a Stats School-snpported by the public funds and under the official management of President Green, is accomplishing wonders.

Every Kentuckian should take pride in its welfare. Gov. Morehead delivers the annual address tomorrow (Wednesday) the 24th inst. We need not say that from so ripe a sholar and so eloquent an orator, there may be expected words of wisdom, clothed in the choicest beauties of rhetoric.

The annual commencement takes place on Wed-

HIGH SCHOOL.—The examinations of the Male High School commence to-day. They are conducted in writing, and will continue for three days. The relative standing of the young men will be determined by this examination and the honors will be awarded accordingly. On Friday the examination for admission to the school will be held, to which all will be admitted who have previously procured tickets from the agent of the public schools. Parents had better attend to this matter, as another year will elapse before another opportunity occurs.

GROSS OUTRAGE .- On Friday or Saturday night some miscreatns entered the Hope engine house and defaced the Conqueror hose carriage. They also took the roll-book of the company and mutillated it in the most disgraceful manner. Such a gross outrage should not go unwhipt of justice. Its authors should be discovered and made to suffer that punishment their mean and contemptible acts merit.

The Hope company offers a reward for the appre hension of the mean villains.

A large steamer, supposed to be the Persia, from Liverpool, with dates to the 13th inst., was seen yesterday off this place, heading West. Jamestown in 1619, says:

We may well imagine the proud emotions which swelled the bosoms of all at this important event; more especially may we conceive the intensity of delight with which an old settler observed each Burgess as no xlighted at the door of the City Hotel to obtain accommodation for the night.

We presume the "old settler" alluded to was the landlord of the "City Hotel."

A SENATE OF CONSPIRATORS .- General O'Donnell, in his late personal vindication before the Span ish Senate, stated that there was not one Senator then listening to him who had not at some time or other been an active conspirator against the government The remark created no particular sensation. It seemed to be regarded by his brother Senators as rather pointless than otherwise.

Hysome D. Brown, a native of this State. died in the Charity Hospital, New Orleans, on the 13th inst. He fell from a cab on the levee five or six days prior to his death, and got his left arm mashed so badly that the injury became fatal. The driver was arrested at the time for pushing Brown off, but according to the verdict of the Coroner he was not to blame.

Several of the friends of Col. Hatton and Gen. Harris, the American and Democratic candidates for Governor in Tennessee, publish a card announcing the amicable adjustment of the personal difficulties of these gentlemen.

The Gallatin (Tenn.) Examiner, speaking of the tobacco crop in Sumner, says that there are a larger number of plants set out this year than the last; and, with a good season, we may expect, of course, an increased crop. Mr. E. Q. Naghel, the chief engineer of the

New Albany fire department, writes us that the Invincible company of Indianapolis was the guest of the entire fire department of his city, and not exclusively of the Osceola company, as has been stated. The London Times think that our government was "perhaps wise in giving the Mormons rope." It was certainly foolish in not keeping hold of one end of it. A Southern editor talks about waging "war against the territory of the barbarian or the effete.'

New Music.-Messrs. D. P. Faulds & Co., in connection with their extensive establishment on Main street, between Second and Third, are actively and energetically engaged in publishing sheet music, which enjoys great popularity. We have received the following, comprising the latest of their most excellent publications:

"Spirit Galop," composed by Fred Ceil and dedi-ated to Miss M. Bement, of Evansville.

"I'm Coming Home," a touching ballad by Rev. A. Tucker. Music by N. C. Morse, who affectionately inscribes it to his mother.

"Old Times," a ballad by Sam. V. Morris. These are all home productions, printed and published here, and handsomely engraved by Mr. Coles. of D. P. Faulds & Co.'s house.

The central convocation of the clergy and laity of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Kentucky will convenc in St. Andrew's church, in this city, on next Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, and continue in session until Friday evening. The public are invited to attend its meetings, and we doubt not they will be very interesting.

We clip the following capital remark from an xchange. Its acuteness is not surpassed by anything in Sadi or in Solomon:

The man who does not advertise his business, confesses neapacity and defeat, and mast retreat to the rear rank of his vocation.

The heavy defalcation of the State Treasurer of Ohio is the subject of much comment and discussion in that State. The Cincinnati Gazette, says:

W. W. Cones, the Commercial Bank of Toledo, City Bank of Cincinnati, and D. Beckel, of Dayton, eat up the amount of $204,987 97, which the Attorney General of the State has in suit, this leaves the "late Treasurer," Mr. John G. Breslin, the defeated Democratic State Treasurer at the doors of the vault on the 15th of January, 1856, with his hands, as his own figures show, on the funds of the State of Ohio, to the snug amount of $760,667 76. Did he leave that sum in the vault or pay it over to his successor? Nary red was there in the "iron chest." By a private arrangement, how does not yet appear, Mr. Gibson has received from Breslin sums of noney at various times, sufficient to reduce the defalcation at various times, sufficient to reduce the defalcation or plunder to $549,000.

PUTTING IN CUTTINGS.—Many fail in growing plants from cuttings, because they leave too many buds out of ground, and have too few in the ground. If a cutting has three eyes or buds, then two of them should be entirely underground, and the upper or last one just level with the surface. The same when a cutting has four or five buds; place all but one under ground. When cuttings are shallow planted, leaving more plants out than in the ground, the buds start, the leaves form, evaporation is rapid, and the delicate, new, fibrous roots soon die, as our hot suns and dry seasons so heat the earth, to the depth of four inches, as to dry up all supplies. As a consequence the cutting fails. When the cutting is inserted eight to ten inches deep into the earth, and but one bud left above, the conditions in this case favor the formation of roots, and generally cuttings so placed sneceed.—Mass. Plouman.

Don't Thin Your Carrots. — I wish to enter a protest against the plan of thinning carrots to three or four inches apart. I seldom thin out any except in spots where the seeds were sown in clusters and come up, perhaps a dozen in the space of a hand's breadth. Two years ago this season I planted a patch ten rods long by fifty feet wide, and dug one handred bushels of carrots, and not one of them larger than one and a half inches in diameter and fourteen inches long, and when a basket full was lifted to the wagon it denoted some substance; they were of the long orange variety. A neighbor, the same season, raised on half an acre about one hundred and fifty bushels, and his smallest were larger than my largest, but the noticeable difference was in the weight of the basket when filled.

CURING CLOVER HAY.—Those who have on hand a supply of old dry straw will do well to use it freely while stowing away clover hay in the barn. By a liberal use of dry straw, the clover need only be partially cured in the field. Alternate layers of clover hay and straw, with an occasional sprinkle of salt, will render the whole admirable fodder. The straw, saturated with the juices of the clover, will be eaten with as much relish as the best timothy hay.—Ohto Valley Farmer.

EVENING BULLETIN

TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 23, 1857.

TRIED IN SEVEN STATES, AND HOW IT HAS WORK-ED .- The Maine law (says the Providence Post) has been fairly tried in seven States of the American Union, and in every one it has proved a complete failure. From the eastern boundary of Maine to the western line of Michigan it has not permanently closed a single grog shop. In Rhode Island there are three grog shops to-day where there was one when the law was enacted. In Maine the law has been repealed.

The law was a dead letter in nearly every school district in Maine for at least two years before it was repealed. There are not (continues the Post) ten temperance men in any single town or city in New England who will raise a finger to enforce the Maine liquor law. The law has been on the statute book of Rhode Island, with an interruption of only three or four months, ever since July, 1852. During the last two years not four rum sellers have been imprisoned under it; and we are confident that not more than six warrants have been issued.

The Maine law in Rhode Island had not only the effect of multiplying grog shops to an indefinite extent, but it has caused a general spirit of resistance to all excise law; and, indeed, has been a most efficacious cause of the general insubordination of the community to laws of all kind. The general defiance of the late excise law in New York City and elsewhere would not now he witnessed if the friends of the Maine law had not set the example of disregard of the rights of the people in their uuconstitutional scheme, and had not created a habit of disobedience by their unwise project.

The Scientific American, whose authority on such a subject is the best anthority, says that metallic life-preservers, made of thin sheet copper, are the safest and best. Inflated life-preservers made of India rubber or such material were condemned at the meeting of steamboat inspectors held last year. In the case of the burning of a steamer on the Mississippi, which had a number of them on board, they were found totally useless in the hour of need. At the recent burning of the steamboat Northern Indiana, on Lake Erie, numbers of the inflated life-preservers on board, it was discovered, had been rendered useless hy being punctured with pins. The editor of the American believes it would be very easy to make every seat, table, and mattress used on a steamboat a life-preserver, and thinks that steamboat proprietors should be compelled to do

THE GREAT EASTERN. - The question as to the destination of the leviathan steamship Great Eastern has been settled. The Grand Trunk Railway Company have already made arrangements for the vessel to come to Portland Me., to connect with their splendid iron highway. So the Hon. Wm. B. Preston will have his trip to Europe for nothing, so far as regards effecting any immediate commercial change in favor of Norfolk, and the enterprising gentlemen of trade who entertained the chimerical notion of forcing the steamer through the entrance to Long Island and up to New York may bite their thumbs in vain.

Success of Liberia.-Very cheering intelligence to the 4th of May has been received from Liberia. There have been no deaths at the interior settlement of Caryshurg, while among the party of ninety American colored emigrants landed at the town on the coast, formerly Cape Mount, now known as Robertsport, there has been a net increase of one, three infants having died and four been born. This affords cause to hope with a degree of confidence that both these new settlements will be healthy, even far beyond any other settled portion of the republic.

WHEAT IN INDIANA .- The most encouraging accounts of the wheat crop in Indiana continue to reach us. In the counties of Boone, Carl, Clinton, and Tippecanoe the prospect was never better since they were settled, and fully one-fourth more breadth of ground has been sowed than was harvested last year. The crop of the whole State last year was about thirteen millions of bushels. This year it is estimated by those who have given the matter their particular attention to reach the amount of eighteen NEGRO DEMONSTRATION IN SAVANNAH .- The colored firemen of Savannah, Ga., had a grand public procession there on the 4th inst. There were ten companies altogether, making some 800 men, with their engines and hose carts tastefully decorated with flowers and wreaths. In the course of the day they were reviewed by the Chief Engineer, the Mayor of the city, and Aldermen, all white men.

The Little Rock Gazette says that there has recently sprung up quite a rage for entering public lands in Arkansas, and that swamp and government lands are going off like "hot cakes."

SINGULAR OCCURRENCE,-The Rochester Demo

On Saturday afternoon last, as Mrs. Kennedy, a widow lady, was driving a horse and buggy down the hill at the "Float Bridge," while near the top some part of the harness broke. The horse started on the jump down the hill, Mrs. Kennedy retaining hold of the reins and keeping her seat with remarkable presence of mind. As they approached the foot of the hill, Mrs. K. saw that her only chance to avoid going directly into the water was to rein to avoid going directly into the water was to rein the horse against the side of a barn located near the beach. She determined upon that corrse, and, ex-erting all her strength, she brought the horse's head erting all her strength, she brought the horse's head towards the barn; and such was the momentum the horse had obtained in descending the hill, that it was impossible for him to check his speed, and he literally went through the side of the harn, striking with his shoulder first against the boards, and making an aperture just sufficient to admit his body—the buggy remaining with the wheels against the side of the barn, and the lady being thrown to the ground on one side of the buggy. What is most wonderful of all in this occurrence is that Mrs. Kennedy escared one side of the bnggy. What is most wonderful of all in this occurrence, is, that Mrs. Kennedy escaped without material injury, nor did the horse show any signs of hard usage from being shot like a cannon ball through the side of a barn.

Venerable.—There is a gentleman in Union, H., who will be 101 years old on the 7th of July. His name is Ralph Farnham, and a strong effort was made to induce him to be present at the Bunker Hill celebration in Boston—he having taken part er Hill celebration in Boston—he having taken part in the battle. He declined on account of the distance, and when his son, a lad of fifty or sixty years, proposed to accompany him, replied, "if he went, he didn't want to be bothered with the care of any children." He says he don't remember of ever being sick, but "believes he had a fever or something eighty or ninety years ago."

Antidote to Mosquitoes.—A certain preventive to attacks of mosquitoes, hlack flies, &c., is said to be—glycerine 4 oz., oil of peppermint 2½ drachms, oil of turpentine 4 drachms. The face, hands, in fact all parts exposed, to be rubbed with the mixture. This was given me by an eminent American physician, previous to going into the State of Maine on a hunting expedition. I never knew it used without perfect success.

LATER AND DIRECT FROM MEXICO. — By the schooner James L. Day, we have advices from Vera Cruz to the 6th iust., and from the capital and other parts of the Republic as late as due. The papers, as yet, furnish no definite information of the strength or whereabouts of the rumored Santa Anna expedition, if, indeed, it has other existence than in the imagination of the people and the Government. The Progresso says: "We only record rumors in circulation." But the war steamers Democrata and Vera Cruz were still on the lookout on the southern coast, while the Guerrero had sailed for Tampico, ostensibly with Government stores, but prohably with the same object in view. LATER AND DIRECT FROM MEXICO. - By the object in view.

The works of defence at Vera Cruz, Tampico, and other parts of the Republic proceed with ac-

It is stated by the Eco National that, in case of National that, in ease war with Spain, the President will put himself at the head of the Mexican army. Other papers record evidences of the greatest enthusiasm in defence of the soil throughout the Republic. The National Guards of Cordova and Tlalpam, in offering their services to Comonfort, beg, as a great favor, to be permitted to march as an advanced guard against the enemies of their country. Other equally patrictic and chivalric offers of services are constantly being made. Certain Spanish citizens in Mexico having express ed apprehensions as to their treatment in case of a war with Spain, the Extraordinary, doubtless by authority, counsels them to dismiss their fears. If they take no part in the quarrel, the laws of Mexico, y take no part in the quarrel, the laws of Mexico, well as the generous feelings of the people, will lect them protect them.

The papers are filled with the most exciting accounts of the recent arrests at the capital. There is no essential fact, however, to add to our previous intelligence, except the statement of many papers that the conspirators were found with arms in their hands. It is also stated that most of them papers that the conspirators were found with arms in their hands. It is also stated that most of them were Spaniards hy birth. They were dealt with very summarily, thrown into the chain gang with common malefactors, and sent to the public works in the Callejon de Santa Clara, where at last accounts they were engaged in cleaning the public sewers.

The conspirators were all cducated men, highly connected in the city of Mexico, and held offices of honor and confidence in the civil Government or in honor and confidence in the civil Government or in the army. The excitement was very great, and, though there was no doubt of their guilt, the ex-treme disgrace of their punishment had begin to react on the public mind. Crowds of the common people, however, flocked daily to the Callejon de Santa Clara to witness, no doubt, with satisfaction, the uovel spectacle there presented.

the uovel spectacle there presented.

Subsequently yielding probably to a reactionary feeling, by no means unnatural, considering the social standing and high connections of the Santa Anna conspirators, Comonfort had ordered them to be conspirators, Comonfort had ordered them to withdrawn from the chain-gaug and placed in solitary confinement. As to the documents found on the persons of the conspirators when surprised, only their titles have generally been given to the public. We have one, however, and that from the celebrated Santa Anna,

There is nothing in this letter, no more than in the published fragments of others, that could possibly compromise the recipient, and yet it shows plain-ly enough the intimate relations which the restless old chieftain manages still to maintain with his former political and personal friends at home. Our intelligence is still imperfect, but a revolution on a intelligence is still imperfect, but a revolution on a grand scale, and a long time maturing, has evidently been nipped in the bud. We can only await the next development in this unhappy country of political and ecclesiastical dissension.

In connection with this revolutionary movement, and doubtless for the purpose of preparing the minds of the people for it, we observe that the country has been flooded with Santa Anna's manifest of April 7.

The spirit of the manifesto, though ably written, is somewhat petnlent, and frequently unworthy a man of so great name and fortnne. It abounds, nevertheless, in many soul-stirring appeals, and concludes with those words. cludes with these words:

"Citizens, the hour to save our country has ar-

It is stated in the Mexican papers that the whole number of Americans shot in Sonora is seventy. It was believed, also, that the few who escaped perished with hunger, thirst, and exposure. Our minister, Mr. Forsyth, has been in correspondence with the ent on the subject.

THE HOME OF HENRY CLAY.—Our carriage was driven up an avenue—not a long one. The house is near the road. There is no distance-no deep seclunear the road. There is no distance—no deep seems ion between the home of Henry Clay and the people. There is a very mingled feeling which rushes over one sheart, at the glance here. It is a contest between the practical and thoughtful. The old house, Ashland, as it was when it was the residence, the home life of Clay, is away; a new and admir-ably built and really beautiful mansion in its place— a house so tasteful, and built with such good taste in ornament, and in combination of material, that, were it utterly dissociated with the fame of an illuswere it utterly dissociated with the fame of an illustrions man, it would yet at once be attractive, and the traveler would pause to admire it, as we do in relation to those, which, in the environs of Boston, teach how strongly the beautiful may be represented in architecture. But "it's not the true king for a' that"—it is not the house of Henry Clay, and, while I freely admit the present owner had the right to manage his estate as his judgment counselled, I think he owed it to such a father to let the home hink he owed it to such a father to let the home and while beam and rafter would bind. It might burn down, blow down, crush in, or crumble ont. That would have been the same touch of Time that effaces the words we have written with our hearts; but the nation did ask, did hope, that the house whence Henry Clay had so often departed on mission of eloquent word and statesman act would remain. Rich, in all the sitnatious for mansions that taste or opulence could desire, is Ashland; and while a new honse was built for comfort, for the practical, it would have been kind to us to have let sunshine and storm alternate (as they did on the silver-voiced old man) for years yes. But the regrets are vain. The old house is off the land and this elegant new one is in its place. It is planned to resemble the old one and the association of our memory is easily recalled. Thanks to the man who invented those words, real estate, the land could not be taken away. In all the matchless beauty of tree and lawn and glade and field and garden, Ashland exists, more lovely than our hope or thought of it had created, and just such a sur-rounding of the lovely as could instruct, in its symbol language, the tongue of the orator.

Courler and Enquirer. [From our late California files.]

"A performance on the tight-rope!" is the California style of mentioning the snicide of a Chinaman by strangling himself with a hempen cravat.

Quite an interesting fracas recently took place in one of the Pacific street dance-houses, San Francisco. Among the participants in the entertainment were several females from the "ould sod," just sufficiently incbriated for a "lark." One of their number directed the band to play Nora Crena, while another insisted upon having Paddy O'Rafferty. The company took sides with either contestants, and the contest grew so warm that the musicians, gentlemen from "Dutchland," fled in terror, and the uffair concluded in a general fight, in which the daughters of the "Green Isle," true to their nature, made common cause against all the rest—whipped them out, and then whipped each other. A night-watchman attracted by the noise, found the survivor sitting on the old wooden eurb, singing—"The Harp that once through Tara's Hall," &c.

SENATOR BUTLER AND THE NEGRO WOMAN'S PRAYER .- The Newhern Rising Sun gives the following ancedote of the late Senator Andrew Pickens Butler, of South Caroliua:

During his passage from Charleston to Wilming-ou, on his first trip as Senator to Washington, the tou, on his first trip as Senator to Washington, the boat was overtaken by a storm which rendered her an unmanageable wreck. She had been forty hours as at sea; the captain pronounced her lost. While she was rolling in the trongh of the sea, and expected every moment to founder, Judge Butler had all called forward, and desired that each should know one another, so that, if any reached the land, he, she, or they might report the fate of the others. An elderly negre woman (the stewards), prepared to the stewards and the stewards and the stewards. elderly negro woman (the stewardess, perhaps) said: "Old master, this is no time for introductions: you had better pray." He said: "I cannot; hut pray, old lady, if you can." She iustantly knelt down and poured forth a fervent prayer to God for deliverance. In a moment after, the lights of the steamer sent from Wilmington in search of the missing boat were seen, and they were saved. Mrs. Thompson, who heard the Judge's narration after his return home, said to him: "Brother Pickens, that old woman's prayer saved you!"

Hume, the Spiritualist, Again in Paris.— Paris, June 4, 1857.—Mr. Douglas Hinne has re-turned to Paris. He has brought a sister, a pretty, turned to Paris. He has brought a sister, a pretty, interesting girl of eleven years old, to a boarding school, where she is placed under the kind protection of the Empress. Mr. Hume is better in health than when he quitted Paris, and, what is very singular, improved health seems to have diminished to some extent his supernatural powers. Mr. Hume has positively refused to give representations. He lives alone, very retired, and, except on very few occasions, he does not consent to make any more experiments.

Last Sunday, the day the Court left Fontainebleau to return to Paris, Mr. Hume had the honor of taking luncheons with their Majesties and the King of Bavaria before their departure. He made several experiments which were required of him by the King of Bavaria. Invisible hands have touched King of Bavaria. Invisible hands have touched the hair of his Majesty, knocked his knees, and patted his hands; the furniture was removed to considerable distances; the tables have replied to the questions put to them. The King of Bavaria was all admiration; the mystrious phenomena which manifest the supernatural power of Mr. Hume were produced in the most decisive manner. Suddenly the phenomena ceased; Mr. Hume lost his power, the spirits refused to obey, the arm-chairs became immovable, and the tables kept silence. "Ask the spirits why they cease to kept silence. "Ask the spirits why they cease to reply," said one of the august witnesses of the ex-

Mr. Hume obeyed. He transmitted this question to the spirit, which, by the medium of the table, replied, It is the honr of Divine service. In fact it was a few minutes before 12 o'clock. All rose from was a few minutes before 12 0 clock. All rose from the table and went to the chapel. The interest with which his Majesty watches the experiments of Mr. Hume are most surprising. He has always thought we must examine before deciding on that which appears ont of the ordinary laws of nature, and listen without disdain to those who believe to have discovered some new law some removed considered as ered some new law, some phenomenon considered as impossible, or some mystery to which most men cling, because they do not comprehend it. A short time before the revolution of February, at London, Prince Louis Napoleon and Count d'Orsay pursued very attentively the long and expensive experiments of an althymist who pretended to have discovered of an alchymist who pretended to have discovered the philosopher's stone—the secret to make gold. The experiments have not succeeded, but, if the Emperor had not tried them, there would perhaps still eror had not tried them, then, emain some doubts to dissipate.

N. Y. Evening Post.

General Walker enjoyed a respite yesterday from the numerous calls of the previous days, the rain and the General's evident anxiety to be quiet keeping the sympathizers at home. Col. Lockridge left by the evening train for the South, and General Walker went to Staten Island to spend Sunday with

C. C. Norvell, his uncle.

In consequence of information received at the ustom-house, officers Alexander Isaacs and Thos. Byrnes went, by order of the Surveyor of the Port, to Staten Island, and waited the arrival of the steamship Fulton, from Havre, on her last trip; they went to the room of Mr. Kane, the chief steward, where, on examination, they found a quantity of jewelry, Oriental pearls, and other precious stones in his overcost pocket and locker, which they seized and sent to the Collector's office. The steward admitted that to the Collector's office. The steward admitted that they were not on the ship's manifest, and admitted that he had done wrong in taking them, and wished that he had thrown the d—d goods overboard before any trouble had come to him. Kane was taken before Commissioner Morton, and held him to bail in the sum of $5,000, on a charge of snuggling.

The steamship Fulton was seized by the custom-house officers on the grounds of the above smuggling, but a petition has been presented against her being libelled, as the captain or officers were not cognizant CHURCH ROBBERIES IN SPAIN.—According to the Espana, upwards of fifteen Spanish churches, CHURCH KOBBERIES IN SPAIN.—According to the Espana, upwards of fifteen Spanish churches, including the Cathedral of Segovia, were robbed du-ring the month of March. In that of April seven-teen were robbed, including the Cathedral of Bur-ges, and the valuable sahre of Geu. Urbistondo, a ges, and the valuable sahre of Geu. Urbistondo, a testimonial for services, was stolen from his corpse while the funeral service was being performed over him in the Church of St. Martin, at Madrid. The Espana has not yet ascertained the number of churches despoiled in the month of May. As some set-off to this startling amount of sacrilege, which testifies at once to the religious feelings of the population, it is satisfactory to read lately in the Regeneracion that some further ceremonies took place in the Chanel Boyal on account of the celebrated nail the Chapel Royal on account of the celebrated nail—one of those with which the Saviour was attached to the cross. This invaluable piece of iron "was carried in procession, placed upon the high altar, and mass having been said, was adored by the King and Queen, the Princess of the Asturias, the Duke and Duchess de Montpensier, and their three daughters.

Revolt Among the Missouri State Prisoners .- On Wednesday morning last, while the prisoners were at work quarrying stone for the extension of the prison walls, at the quarry known as Gunn's quarry, when prison walls, at the quarry known as Gunn's quarry, they hroke from the guards on duty and ran, when the guards fired on them. All stopped except six, when they were again fired on, wounding two of the prisoners in the left arm, who immediately fell. When the prisoners saw two of their number fall all surrendered except one, who has not been heard from yet. The wounded prisoners are doing well, being wounded through the fleshy part of the arm, between the allow, and the shoulder. The ball passed being wounded through the healty part of the arm, between the elbow and the shoulder. The ball passed out of one of the wounded men; the ball in the other prisoner has not been extracted yet. The officers of the prison had some intimation of the affair before taking the men out to work, and had strengthened the number of guards, otherwise it would have resulted more seriously.—Jetferson City Ing., June 20. sulted more seriously .- Jefferson City Inq., June 20.

Enforcing a Blue Law in Concord, N. H.—The biliard saloons in Concord, N. H., have heen closed by the authorities, upon which the editor of the Manchester Mirror says: "With all due deference Manchester Mirror says: "With all due deference to those little posted in the ways of this world, we would say that the old law existing upon this subject is patterned after the blue laws of Connecticnt. We should just as quick think of forbidding playing cricket, hase ball, tag, checkers, backgammon, dominoes, or any other common, and, of its lf, innocent amusement, as billiards. It is played all over the world the same as backgammon, and Concord is the only place that stops it, or would think of stopping it. It is small potato business, trying to kill off all the fun there is in the world—the cheapest and most innocent fun there is."

This error will of course be promptly corrected, and its correction will give Judge Wheat 115 votes majority, if the unofficial majorities should prove correct. We understand that another telegraphic dispatch was received from Glasgow last night, giving Bullitt's majority in Monroe at 25 instead of 16. This may be correct, which would make Wheat's majority 106. This is a slight increase on the maority of Fillmore in the same counties.

Police Proceedings-Tuesday, June 23.-Yesterday Wm. Hoffman was exceedingly drunk and noisy on Jefferson, between Sixth and Seventh streets. Sent out to spend the summer at the cave. The next case was that of a slim, fiercely mnstached, and hatchet-faced Russian, Geo. Covatchcowitch, before the tremendous length of whose name the court stood appalled. In vain the clerk attempted to pen the terrible cognomen or the attorney to call it. There was enough of terror in its Cossack origin to overcome a regiment of Englishmen. But finally the facts in the case were discovered, and, for wild infuriated drunkenness on the wharf, the accused, he his name spelled or pronounced as it may, was consigned to the Workhouse for three months. Elizabeth Saunders accused Margaret Daily of being dangerous to her existence. Officer Enlow was called in to testify hy both parties. He said that the accused was a hard working woman, and her accuser half crazy and half drunk alternately. The Judge dismissed the warrant in a very summary manner.

Nancy Scott, just out of the Workhouse, relapsed into her old hahits and was found drunk vesterday. Sent hack to former quarters for two months.

Margaret McCaffrey complained that Rehecca and America Coursin had threatened to take her life. No rebutting proof being offered, the husband of Mrs. Coursin gave his own bond for the good behavior of his family. The parties all reside in Portland.

The prisoners bench presented a most deplorable spectacle this morning. Officers Tiller, Rust, and Shanks, when visiting Washington street, opposite the gas works, found a collection of men, women and children, all drunk and disorderly. This party consisted of Dan'l Martin and two children, Pat. Hurley, Chas. Yater, Puilip Day, Rachel Wright and three children, Luke Quinn, Enoch Roper, and Jane McManus. They were all in a miserable plight-hloated and filthy faces, unshorn heards, rags, tatters, and all the concomitants and attendants of drunken wretchedness. The children were sent to the alms house and the grown up persons to the work house.

Not all of them indeed. Mirabile dictu. The officers testfied that I Jane McManns, the "war eagle," of old renown, was not drunk and not disorderly yesterday. This is the first instance in her history that such testimony was ever borne in her behalf. Jane was accordingly discharged.

Elizabeth Hawck beat and severely hruised a little daughter of Nicholas Prise. Required to answer at the next monthly term.

We are indebted to the attentive officers of the Rainbow, Chancellor, and Southerner for favors. The following we take from the St. Louis Intelligencer of Monday:

gencer of Monday:

Singular Accident.—The steamer White Cloud, from St. Paul, on Wednesday night last, just below Lake Pepin, ran into the woods. A tree, striking just forward of the starboard wheel, carried away the water-wheel beam, smashed up the wheel-house, and tore off the after-guard, on which were hitched six mules. In some unaccountable manner, the mules were hurled on the hank unhurt, and the boat rounded-to and took them on board again. Flood Coming.—The last arrivals report the upper Mississippi very high, heavy rains having fallen all through the upper country. Every tributary was booming, and the Mississippi in some places out of its banks. This account is borne out by a statement in another column, from the Chicago Press, one of whose editors has just returned from St. Paul. A gentleman who arrived yesterday by the cars, A gentleman who arrived yesterday by the cars, from the upper Missouri, reports the river rising very fast. Ileavy rains had fallen, and a fine stage in the river was expected. The river here contin use on the increase.

Movement of Troops.—The steamers White Cloud and Minnesota Belle brought down from Fort Sneling about 500 U. S. Infantry, and transferred them to the Oceana and Col. Crossman, for Fort Leaveuworth.

Lendon, June 4, 1857.

The London tobacco market, since our hist report dated May 7, has relapsed into a state of complete inactivity, so so much so, that, with the exception of some small purebases for exportation, we are not aware of a single transaction beyond the merest retail dealing.

This is only what was to be anticipated after the speculative operations in April had been discontinued, unless the regular home trade buyers had had courage enough to foliow up the movement at an advance, but they have not done so, nor can we, no ler existing circumstances, expect a renewal of demand from that source until positive wants call for new supplies.

In the meantime we see no diminution of confidence on the part of holders, and may safely repeat our last month's quotations.

A meeting of merchants was held at Liverpool on Friday for the purpose of assisting the movement for obtaining an increased supply of cotton. Resolutions were passed referring to the present inadequate and uncertain supply of that staple as well as to the undue fluctuatious in price, and expressing the opinion that the colonies of Great Britain offered ample resources for the cultivation and development of the cotton plant, and that it is the duty of ment of the cotton plant, and that it is the duty of the British nation to aid the measures hy which its growth may be established and extended. A committee was appointed to co-operate with the Man-chester Cotton Supply Association.

CULTURE OF CORN'AND'POTATOES .- The practice which prevailed some years ago almost universally among farmers of "laying by" corn by throwing the earth to it with a mouldboard plow has very generally given place to the level culture, using the cultivator only in the two last workings. There are, however, still some advocates for the old plan. It is well to consider the reasons given for this practice, and see if there is really any advantage in the plan, as well as the reasons against it. Some farmers earth up corn at the last working because it effectually kills the weeds in the hills and rows, which are out of the reach of any other process except the use of the hoe, and there seems to be some advantage in this practice; but has any one ever made a careful experiment to see if this method of killing weeds is not even more expensive than the use of the hoe? A very slight diminution of the crop may constitute this relatively the most expensive way, for, while it may effectually kill the weeds, may not the corn itself be also injured by burying the roots too deep? Others say it is necessary to "earth up" to prevent the crop from being blown down by the wind. This reason, however, is held by some to be founded in error, for they say that corn cultivated level will withstand as much wind as that which has been hilled. We have observed that, from the time of the last working till the brace roots have taken hold on the soil, there may be some greater security against the effects of high wind in earthing np, but at this period of its growth corn is seldom prostrated by the wind. After the brace roots have taken hold on the soil, we think the level culture has the advantage in this respect, as the roots, when they do take hold, are secure in a comparatively compact soil; whereas, when they strike into the ridge of loose earth probably made still lighter by the weeds covered up in it, they have not firmness to withstand the wind, and the corn is probably more likely to blow down than when the ground is level. Again, these brace roots, as they are called, have another and more important duty to perform. They are designed to answer the call for increased supplies of nourishment made by the development of the ear and grain, and this object is certainly more likely to be answered when the roots are securely entwined into the level, moist snrface soil than when they are only imbedded in the light, loose, upturned furrow, which, from its very porosi tv and elevation, is liable to become perfectly dry and dusty in a very short time. We believe, therefore, that the practice of hilling up corn should be discontinued, unless experience should develop some better reason for the practice than the two we have noticed. The reason which some give for the prac tice, that it brings the earth nearer to the branch roots, and consequently they enter it sooner, is not tenable, inasmuch as these roots are always produced from the joint nearest the ground; and we have known earthing up of corn to compel it to put out a second set of roots, because the joint from which they were pushing was covered with earth. This of conrse must be some disadvantage to the crop, because so much of the effort of the plant as went to form these roots thus buried was lost. The practice of hilling up potatoes in laying them by is supported on the same plea of killing weeds when a reason is given for it at all, but from some late experiments many are led to doubt the propriety of this method. Potatoes require clean culture. They are very sensibly affected by the growth of even small weeds among them while the tuber is forming, but it would be well to try level culture, and kill the weeds by some other means. We are quite sure that the crop is diminished by earthing up, if done after the young potato has begun to form, for the reason that the plant immediately commences the formation of new roots on that part of the stem covered by the earth. Consequently the top is encouraged to grow and support a set of roots which contribute nothing to the formation or growth of the tuber, but rather detract from it, by an effort to form a second crop. We throw ont these hints in the hope that practical men will experiment and note the results, and give them to the public. We want the results of carefully tried experiments on these points. Facts in agriculture must be the basis of improvement and progress. Practical farmers must observe and experiment to arrive at these facts; and by carefully collecting them results may be reached far more valuable than the most elaborate theoretical speculations. Farmers should have a reason for every practice they pursue, and be well assured that the reasons are good and sufficient.

How to Select a Good Milch Cow .- When the little work of M. Guenon first made its appearance, his method of determining the milking qualities of cows by certain marks, as detailed in the following extract, met with but little favor among practical men; but observations made through several seasons led some of the most decided opposers to admit that there seemed to be some truth in the theory. Since that time it has gradually been gaining ground, until at present there are very few dairymen but make use of these indications in making selections of cows for their dairies. We have for a number of years paid some attention to this matter and have the fullest confidence in its utility as a means of determining the milking qualities of cows. We should rely equally upon it in selecting calves to raise for the dairy. Every farmer should become acquainted with these indications, as by so doing he would be able very soon to make such selections as materially to improve his stock. Guenon's book is published by Saxton & Co., New York, and can, we presnme, be obtained at any bookstore. The following extract will enable observing men soon to obtain sufficient insight into it as to be useful to

When Guenon's theory of determining the value of mileh cows by the growth of hair on the thighs, above and adjacent to the bag, was first introduced, the idea was received with a good deal of scepticism. Time has wrought changes. At a late convention by the legislative club of the State of New York, one of the speakers gave the evidence in relativestic to the speakers gave the evidence in relativestic to the state of the state of the speakers gave the evidence in relative to the state of the st about 400 cows are kept, and where nine-tenths of them are far above average milkers, the development or upward growth of the hair on the posterior part of the udder, thighs, and perinœum was too remarkable to be accounted for by accidental causes. As well might it be said that all other tests, such as length of head, softness and flexibility of skiu, and wide quarters, were accidental, and had no reference to the milking properties of a cow. When a phenomenon presents itself over and over again, accompanied in a majority of cases by certain results, we may be certain that it is not accidental, but natural; and, while we may be unable to account for these results upon satisfactory grounds, it is neither philosophical nor prudent to deny or ignore the connection between the one and the other, and thus to forfeit the advantages which the fact itself is calculated to afford.

The late Dr. Phinney, of Massachusetts, a very careful and critical observer, made examination of a large number of milk cows, and found in a majority of them, that were good milkers, those developments. large number of milk cows, and found in a majority of them, that were good milkers, those developments well marked. He conversed with a large number of intelligent gentlemen when he was abroad in 1851, in Great Britain and France, and found but one opinion as to the general character of the animals which possessed these developments; and, so far as we have learned the views of gentlemen in this country who have given attention to this subject, the result has been the same.

I think it may with safety be affirmed that this one principle' is established—that all things being alike, as regards shape, texture of skin, &c., cows with well developed escutcheons will, in a large majority of cases, be found to be the best milkers, and above an average; while, on the other hand, those with very small escutcheons will be found nnder, or, at most, not above an average in their milking properties.

In calves, the escutcheons show the shapes which they are afterwards to assume. They are more contracted only because the parts which they cover are slightly developed. They are easily perceived after birth, but the lair which forms them is long, coarse, and stiff. After this hair falls off, the escutcheons and stiff. After this hair falls off, the escutcheons of calves resemble those of cows, though of less size. This will enable the farmer to save such calves as will probably serve him as good milkers. Farmer and Planter.

BUCKWHEAT.—1. Its Origin and History.—Buckwheat, or literally beech-wheat—so called from its seed resembling in shape the mast of the beech—is conceded by all writers to be a native of Central and Northern Asia, though the time of its introduction into Europe is differently stated. Some say it was brought by the Moors into Spain in the eighth century, others that it came with the Crusaders in their return from the Holy War in the twelfth; and, be that as it may, it is certain that it has been cultivated in England only about two hundred and fifty years. Its triangular grain, arrow-shaped leaves, and fragrant, purplish white flowers are too well known to require more particular description.

2. Introduction and Product in the U. S. — It was first cultivated in the United States by the Dutch on the Hudson and the Swedes on the Delaconceded by all writers to be a native of Central and Dutch on the Hudson and the Swedes on the Delaware. It is mentioned among the grain products of the former, as early as 1626; and Kalm, the Swedish the former, as early as 1626; and Kalm, the Swedish naturalist, who visited this country in 1748, speaks of it as found growing in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York. These States still produce a large share of the product of the country—in 1856 two-thirds, or 6,000,000 of bushels. Its cultivation, however, is rapidly extending through all the Northern and Northwestern States, and the national product for 1856 may be estimated at 15,000,000 of bushels, a large share of which is consumed by the producers and their immediate neighbors.

producers and their immediate neighbors.

3. Varieties of Buckicheat.—Buckwheat belongs to the persicaria tribe; that commonly cultivated is botanically known as the Polygonum fagopyrum. Among its varieties are the blue or "Canadian buckwheat," very popular some ten years since in eastern New York and Pennsylvania, and the eastern New York and Pennsylvania, and the "Scotch gray," now generally grown as far as we are acquainted. A variety called Indian buckwheat (P. tartarlcum) is grown to some extent in New England, for fattening swine, not producing flour palatable as human food. The kernel is harsh, coarse, and nearly ovate, and the product often large, yielding on rich, new soil one hundred bushels per acre. But half a bushel per acre of seed is required and it may be sown from May until Auels per acre. Rut half a bushel per acre of seed is required, and it may be sown from May until Au-gust, though early sowing is most advisable. The flour, ground without bolting, is nearly the color of sulphur.

4. Analysis of the Grain and Straw.—In its classification as a plant, says Prof. Salisbury, buckwheat belongs to a family far removed from the cereals; but, in the composition and properties of its seed, it approximates to them closely. One thousand pounds of the grain contain the following constituents, organic and inorganic: d inorganic:

The green stalks of buckwheat, as analyzed by most domestic animals, and contains, as above shown, consiberable nutritive matter.

5. Soils and Culture. — Almost any soil will pro duce buckwheat, but it seems best suited with light warm lands of moderate fertility. It is as well adapted as any grain to low, moist lands, which dry off late in the spring, and suffer from drouth during the heats of summer, when early sown grain requires most moisture. It germinates quickly and ring the heats of summer, when early sown grain requires most moisture. It germinates quickly and soon throws out sufficient roots and leaves to secure a supply of water, both from the soil and atmosphere. The cultivation usually is simply to plow the land, after green sward, early in the spring, then harrow or gang at the time of sowing. The grain is often sown on ground infested with weeds, which it is desired to subdue; in that case more thorough preparation should be given, that the surface may be entirely covered. In all cases it is best to have the ground in fine tilth, and generally to roll after harrowing in the seed. Though buckwheat will grow without manure, it feels the application as quick as any other plant, and a corresponding increase in growth is produced. Plaster and ashes exert an immediate influence and benefit.

6. Time of Sowing—Amount of Seed.—The time of sowing is usually between the 20th of June and the 4th of July, though it may be sown earlier—as soon as danger from late frosts is to be feared no longer. Early sown buckwheat is liable to be blasted by the heat of July and August; late sown is equally exposed during the drouth often occurring in September; and in addition to this early frosts may cut it off ere it begins to ripen. The cultivator must suit his own convenience in this matter, revention by the legislative club of the State of New York, one of the speakers gave the evidence in relation to Guenon's theory:

M. Guenon, a French writer, has discovered certain indications which he claims to determine the milking qualities of cows. This he calls 'escutcheons,' being the hair which grows upward (contrary to the general rule) on the udder, thighs, and hinder part of the body. It is easy to distinguish the escutcheon by the upward directions of the hair which forms them. I cannot go into detail here upon the system, but would refer to the work of M. Guenon itself. But to show that it is esteemed worthy of notice, I will allude to the testimony of those who have given attention to it.

Mr. John Haxton, in a work published in 1853, entitled "How to choose a good Milch Cow," in reference to the indication of a good milch cow, p. 178, says: "The writer has examined many hundred of dairy cows in Britain, and the conclusion arrived at in regard te M. Guenon's test of judging of the milking properties of a cow, by the development of the ecusson, is that, in a very large majority of cases, it is borne out by facts."
